

Encouraging Kids to Tap Their Inner Author

PBS station KMOS-TV provides 11 hours of award winning children's programming to families in central Missouri every day. As part of our mission to provide basic educational and literacy skills to our youngest viewers, KMOS-TV encourages children to stretch their creative wings and participate in the . . .

KMOS Kids Writers Contest

For more than 10 years, hundreds of kids in grades kindergarten through third grade have participated in this annual event. The KMOS Kids Writers Contest invites parents and teachers to use this creative writing and illustrating experience to build literacy skills. Parents, homeschoolers and teachers across central Missouri value this learning opportunity and look forward to participating each year.

KMOS-TV is looking for sponsors to help produce be the KMOS Kids Writers Contest successful program again this year. A club, business or organization can become involved by contributing as little as $250.00 towards the project goal of $3,500.00. These funds cover the administrative and promotions costs necessary to produce a quality field of applicants each year. As a sponsor, the club and/or business or organization will have its participation listed on promotional materials both in print and on air.

As a sponsor of the KMOS Kids Writers Contest, you will be helping sustain this valuable program for children - empowering them while they build literacy skills and creative thinking.
