Million Dollar Dinner

The late District Governor Mike Beahon had a goal of holding a so-called "Million Dollar Dinner" at which more than $1 million would be raised to the benefit of The Rotary Foundation and District 6080. He was not able to live to see that goal to fruition. As a tribute to Governor Mike Beahon such an event will be held Saturday, April 23, 2016, at 6:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn Executive Center in Columbia.

Invited guests will be those Rotarians who have given $10,000 or more as gifts of cash or bequests between July 1, 2014, and March 1, 2016.

Please contact Andrew Kerr, our Zone 31 major gifts officer, at (919)830-3573 for assistance developing your gift.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year from Down Under

Jenna Teter Guillen, Rotary Global Scholar Australian National University, Canberra

I'd like to start off by wishing a Merry Christmas and Happy New year to all Rotarians reading this! I have been blessed by Rotary more than once and am truly thankful for the support this organization gives to clubs, people in need, and students on scholarship. Thank you for the support.

The past two months have been busy as I wrapped up my first semester of graduate school in the middle of November and started an internship with the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) just several days later. The great news is, I passed all courses and am ready to register for my second semester courses by the end of the week.

The internship at UNHCR has been challenging and rewarding. This office is responsible for helping all persons who are living within the South Pacific region and who are seeking asylum status. This region includes Australia, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea and the Pacific Islands. As an intern for the Public Information Unit, my current responsibilities involve writing daily media reports on any news within the region about refugees or asylum seekers and writing summaries of debates on refugee bills in the Australian Parliament while it is in session. Currently, I am also working on creating profiles of the members of Parliament so that the UNHCR may understand which members are supportive of refugee and asylum seekers issues.

The Australian government has recently increased the number of refugees it will allow to enter the country, but several issues still remain quite controversial. Australia has a policy called "turn back the boats," which involves sending away boats filled with people seeking safety when they travel across the Pacific Ocean to reach Australia. Commonly, the government puts those individuals who come ashore into detention centres while their visa status is being determined, but this often takes years. This issue is extremely controversial, and most citizens want the government to close down all detention centres and change its policy. The government is under scrutiny from the International community for their immigration policies.

It's fascinating being in a different part of the world where so many debates on refugees, terrorism, religion, and border protection are taking place. What is most evident to me is the way Australians view the United States. In so many ways, the countries are similar, yet in other ways they are quite different. At various times when I happen to meet another American, a sense of commonality comes over me, knowing the fellow American likely shares a similar mindset and view of the world.

With such current events taking place, I believe it is one of the best possible times to be studying International Law. What is occurring globally is at the centre of International Law. I am grateful to be able to study this subject at the Australian National University and am looking forward to returning to my studies in mid-February. But before that I am going to embrace Australia and lie on the beach over the holidays.
